1. Write a SMART goal for next week?
= I've included a list of a few SMART goals for the upcoming week.
I'll complete the online course I'm enrolled in. I'll just eat well-balanced meals and drink a gallon of water every day. I'll go to bed at 10:00 and up at 6:00. I'll read ten pages a day. I'll devote two hours on Saturdays and Sundays to getting ready for work. I'll ignore social media and meditate for 20 minutes every day. I'll finish my work earlier than expected.
2. What would you do differently next week?
= I'll make some modifications for the upcoming week. I'll begin making my bed as soon as I get out of bed. I won't use my phone or any other electronic gadgets for an hour before and after going to bed. I'll try to strike up good relationships with other people. I'll begin networking and go to every job fair. I'll maintain order in my room. I'll also reflect on my past experiences and make adjustments.

= I've learned a few valuable things this week. I won't be particularly confident about a project or assignment after this week of classes, claiming that I'll finish in a few hours and do other things in its place. If I don't finish before the deadline, this will be a waste of time and stressful. I won't be concerned about the passing of time or any other concerns when working on a team or project; instead, I'll be more motivated and focused. I started taking an online course to prepare for a job and for personal growth. I'll also do my best to be dependable and pay attention to one item at a time.
